Description

Buckinghamshire Railway Centre is a railway museum on a 25 acre site operated by the Quinton Railway Society Ltd. at the former Quinton Road railway station site, about 5 miles (8.0 km) west of Aylesbury in Buckinghamshire. It houses one of the UK's largest collections of locomotives, rolling stock and railway memorabilia and regularly holds “steaming days” and other special events. Our visit does not coincide with a steaming day.

The collection is centred around the 1890s Quinton Road Station on the former Metropolitan and Great Central lines and there is now also an impressive Visitor Centre – the former Oxford Rewley Road Station reconstructed on the site. Several restored engines are on display in the Visitors Centre which also houses a Royal Dining Coach from 1901, and a coach used by Winston Churchill and Dwight D. Eisenhower for secret war strategy planning meetings, a refreshment room and a gift shop.

Separate from the visitor centre there is an extensive museum which displays a wide variety of engines, rolling stock and railway memorabilia from both London Underground, British Rail and the former independent railway companies. There are restored steam locomotives and rolling stock, locomotive undergoing restoration and many more awaiting restoration.

More details of the Centre and its collection can be found at www.bucksrailentre.org

Where and when to meet

We will meet at the entrance to the Visitors Centre at 11.00am. Members arriving earlier will be able to purchase refreshments in the Centre where toilets are also available.

Getting there:

Watch out for the brown signs above off the A41 near Waddesdon and the A413 at Whitchurch.

By car

The Buckinghamshire Railway Centre is signposted off the A41 (Aylesbury to Bicester road) at Waddesdon (if you are coming from Aylesbury direction, due to lots of new housing developments, you are advised to ignore your SATNAV until you have driven through Waddesdon). There are also brown signs off the A413 (Buckingham to Aylesbury road) at Whitchurch. Simply follow the brown signs! Junctions 7, 8 and 9 of the M40 are all close by and the M1, M25, M4 and M40 network makes the Centre easily accessible from London, the South East and the Midlands.

There is ample free car parking.
